

Skin and Wound Management

This course will review basic anatomy and physiology of the skin, identify pressure ulcer staging according to NPUAP guidelines, review standards of care and evidence based practice in the areas of wound assessment, wound bed preparation, stages of healing, prevention, nutritional and laboratory considerations, treatment methods and modalities, management of chronic wounds, arterial, venous, and neuropathic wounds and treatment options, review components for accurate wound documentation and discuss multidisciplinary care approaches to wound care. This course provides a great review as well as sets the stage to enhance the attendee's knowledge base to provide better clinical outcomes in the area of skin and wound management using evidence based practice.

The presenter, Cathy Young, is an RN and a Licensed Nursing Home Administrator. She is certified in Gerontology through ANCC. In addition, she is Wound Care Certified (WCC), QAPI certified professional (QCP), and RAC-CT (MDS certification). Cathy will provide education, materials, and support that the attendee can utilize to improve clinical outcomes, manage resources, improve skill sets, and meet regulatory requirements.
